Hill architects and business community unite to sponsor the Larz Anderson Auto Museum

Pauli and Uribe Architects LLC of Beacon Hill is donating its services to help restore and create a new exhibit space at the Larz Anderson Museum in Brookline in the old hayloft area.

The firm has mobilized the Beacon Hill business community with great success to generously donate numerous items for the silent auction to benefit the museum and this project. The silent auction took place at the Gala Event "Golden Era of Hollywood" on Saturday, Nov. 20. At that time, Pauli and Uribe Architects LLC unveiled the perspective rendering, showing a future exhibit space for carriages and other treasures from the museum's collection.

With more than 20 years of historically sensitive Architectural-design, Monika Zofia Pauli and Juan Guillermo Uribe Rubio, as well as Pauli and Uribe Architects, manage to continue their practice, serving their clients on custom smaller scale residential projects.

Besides marketing their services, they also spend their free time, on charitable projects and artwork,

While their philosophy of basing their design on hand drawings is by no way novel in architecture, it is becoming more rare in the computer age.

They volunteer their design and organizational skills to aid local Institutions, such as the Larz Anderson Auto Museum and the new Bina Farm, a therapeutic riding center.

Monika's paintings of the Hill are on display at Massachusetts General Hospital in the Cancer Center's waiting areas, and her illustrations are used on educational Web sites in area schools.

Both Juan and Monika are active members of the Beacon Hill Business Association and The Beacon Hill Civic Association.
